

about the writing center

Writing Center home
 Staff directory
 Research initiative
 Employment opportunity

resources

Tutoring services
 Make an appointment
 Writing in the major
 PNWCA Conference 2010

specific support

Faculty and staff
 International students
 Spanish speakers

The Writing Center opens the second week of each term and closes on Wednesday during exam week. Additionally, the Writing Center is closed during university breaks and holidays.

Most Writing Center services are offered at our main location in APSC 301, where you can make appointments, meet with a tutor, utilize our writer's reference library, obtain handouts on various writing issues, and write in our computer lab.

To make or cancel an appointment, visit our online appointment book.

writing centerIn the business of reading your papers before your professors do

The Writing Center the only academic support unit on campus specifically designed to promote your development and success as a college writer. We can assist you both in person and online with writing projects for any course and any level of instruction.

You are invited to utilize Writing Center services at a variety of stages in your writing processes:

- understanding assignment directions
- brainstorming ideas
- creating “maps” or outlines
- checking to see that your project specifically meets the directions specified by your instructor
- exploring practical routes for revision and development
- adhering to format and style guides (e.g., AAA, APA, APSA, CBE, Chicago, and MLA)

While tutors avoid “fixing” your writing, they do help you become conscious of, and proactive about, particular error patterns that emerge in your written work. Additionally, the Writing Center maintains a library of reference texts and take-home handouts.

Mission

The Writing Center maximizes the individual and professional development of student-writers by offering personalized learning opportunities to advance writerly self efficacy:

- we highlight personal writing strengths and aid in demystifying personal writing challenges
- we promote student success in both school-sponsored and self-sponsored writing-related endeavors
- we offer routes for navigating the range of college-level writing assignments that exist

contact usWriting Center

Western Oregon University
 345 N. Monmouth Ave.
 Monmouth, OR 97361
 503-838-8286
 writingcenter@wou.edu

hours and locationsWriting Center: APSC 301

Monday–Thursday:

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Friday: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Night Hours: HL 116

Sunday–Thursday:

7 to 10 p.m.

walk-in sessions only:

first come, first serve

Online tutoring

Real-time, live-chat sessions;

directions for online sessions

about the writing center

Writing Center home
 Staff directory
 Research initiative
 Employment opportunity

resources

Tutoring services
 Make an appointment
 Writing in the major
 PNWCA Conference 2010

specific support

Faculty and staff
 International students
 Spanish speakers

The Writing Center opens the second week of each term and closes on Wednesday during exam week. Additionally, the Writing Center is closed during university breaks and holidays.

Most Writing Center services are offered at our main location in APSC 301, where you can make appointments, meet with a tutor, utilize our writer's reference library, obtain handouts on various writing issues, and write in our computer lab.

To make or cancel an appointment, visit our online appointment book.

writing centerIn the business of reading your papers before your professors do

The Writing Center the only academic support unit on campus specifically designed to promote your development and success as a college writer. We can assist you both in person and online with writing projects for any course and any level of instruction.

You are invited to utilize Writing Center services at a variety of stages in your writing processes:

- understanding assignment directions
- brainstorming ideas
- creating “maps” or outlines
- checking to see that your project specifically meets the directions specified by your instructor
- exploring practical routes for revision and development
- adhering to format and style guides (e.g., AAA, APA, APSA, CBE, Chicago, and MLA)

While tutors avoid “fixing” your writing, they do help you become conscious of, and proactive about, particular error patterns that emerge in your written work. Additionally, the Writing Center maintains a library of reference texts and take-home handouts.

Mission

The Writing Center maximizes the individual and professional development of student-writers by offering personalized learning opportunities to advance writerly self efficacy:

- we highlight personal writing strengths and aid in demystifying personal writing challenges
- we promote student success in both school-sponsored and self-sponsored writing-related endeavors
- we offer routes for navigating the range of college-level writing assignments that exist

hours and locations*Writing Center: APSC 301

Monday–Thursday:
 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
 Friday: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Night Hours: HL 116

Sunday–Thursday:
 7 to 10 p.m.
 walk-in sessions only:
 first come, first serve

Online tutoring

Real-time, live-chat sessions;
directions for online sessions

contact usWriting Center

Western Oregon University
 345 N. Monmouth Ave.
 Monmouth, OR 97361
 503-838-8286
 writingcenter@wou.edu

about the writing center

Writing Center home
 Staff directory
 Research initiative
 Employment opportunity

resources

Tutoring services
 Make an appointment
 Writing in the major
 PNWCA Conference 2010

specific support

Faculty and staff
 International students
 Spanish speakers

The Writing Center opens the second week of each term and closes on Wednesday during exam week. Additionally, the Writing Center is closed during university breaks and holidays.

Most Writing Center services are offered at our main location in APSC 301, where you can make appointments, meet with a tutor, utilize our writer's reference library, obtain handouts on various writing issues, and write in our computer lab.

To make or cancel an appointment, visit our online appointment book.

writing centerIn the business of reading your papers before your professors do

The Writing Center the only academic support unit on campus specifically designed to promote your development and success as a college writer. We can assist you both in person and online with writing projects for any course and any level of instruction.

You are invited to utilize Writing Center services at a variety of stages in your writing processes:

- understanding assignment directions
- brainstorming ideas
- creating "maps" or outlines
- checking to see that your project specifically meets the directions specified by your instructor
- exploring practical routes for revision and development
- adhering to format and style guides (e.g., AAA, APA, APSA, CBE, Chicago, and MLA)

While tutors avoid "fixing" your writing, they do help you become conscious of, and proactive about, particular error patterns that emerge in your written work. Additionally, the Writing Center maintains a library of reference texts and take-home handouts.

Mission

The Writing Center maximizes the individual and professional development of student-writers by offering personalized learning opportunities to advance writerly self efficacy:

- we highlight personal writing strengths and aid in demystifying personal writing challenges
- we promote student success in both school-sponsored and self-sponsored writing-related endeavors
- we offer routes for navigating the range of college-level writing assignments that exist

hours and locationsWriting Center: APSC 301

Monday–Thursday:
 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
 Friday: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Night Hours: HL 116

Sunday–Thursday:
 7 to 10 p.m.
 walk-in sessions only:
 first come, first serve

Online tutoring

Real-time, live-chat sessions; directions for online sessions

contact usWriting Center

Western Oregon University
 345 N. Monmouth Ave.
 Monmouth, OR 97361
 503-838-8286

writingcenter@wou.edu

about the writing center

Writing Center home
Staff directory
Research initiative
Employment opportunity

resources

Tutoring services
Make an appointment
Writing in the major
PNWCA Conference 2010

specific support

Faculty and staff
International students
Spanish speakers

The Writing Center opens the second week of each term and closes on Wednesday during exam week. Additionally, the Writing Center is closed during university breaks and holidays.

Most Writing Center services are offered at our main location in APSC 301, where you can make appointments, meet with a tutor, utilize our writer's reference library, obtain handouts on various writing issues, and write in our computer lab.

To make or cancel an appointment, visit our online appointment book.

writing centerIn the business of reading your papers before your professors do

The Writing Center the only academic support unit on campus specifically designed to promote your development and success as a college writer. We can assist you both in person and online with writing projects for any course and any level of instruction.

You are invited to utilize Writing Center services at a variety of stages in your writing processes:

- understanding assignment directions
- brainstorming ideas
- creating "maps" or outlines
- checking to see that your project specifically meets the directions specified by your instructor
- exploring practical routes for revision and development
- adhering to format and style guides (e.g., AAA, APA, APSA, CBE, Chicago, and MLA)

While tutors avoid "fixing" your writing, they do help you become conscious of, and proactive about, particular error patterns that emerge in your written work. Additionally, the Writing Center maintains a library of reference texts and take-home handouts.

Mission

The Writing Center maximizes the individual and professional development of student-writers by offering personalized learning opportunities to advance writerly self efficacy:

- we highlight personal writing strengths and aid in demystifying personal writing challenges
- we promote student success in both school-sponsored and self-sponsored writing-related endeavors
- we offer routes for navigating the range of college-level writing assignments that exist

hours and locations*Writing Center: APSC 301

Monday–Thursday:
9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Friday: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Night Hours: HL 116

Sunday–Thursday:
7 to 10 p.m.
walk-in sessions only:
first come, first serve

Online tutoring

Real-time, live-chat sessions; directions for online sessions

contact usWriting Center

Western Oregon University
345 N. Monmouth Ave.
Monmouth, OR 97361
503-838-8286
writingcenter@wou.edu